Minimally invasive procedures were pioneered by interventional radiologists who had first introduced angioplasty and the catheter-delivered stent. Many other minimally invasive procedures have followed where images of all parts of the body can be obtained and used to direct interventional instruments by way of catheters (needles and fine tubes), so that many conditions once requiring open ...

MR angiography is a noninvasive technique for vascular imaging and is thus widely used to screen for cerebrovascular lesions, including asymptomatic unruptured cerebral aneurysms.<sup>1-3</sup> Infundibular dilation is often detected at branching sites of the posterior communicating and anterior choroidal arteries from the internal carotid artery,<sup>4-6</sup> and this needs to be differentiated from an aneurysm.

Magnetic resonance imaging (MRI) is a medical imaging technique used in radiology to form pictures of the anatomy and the physiological processes of the body in both health and disease. MRI scanners use strong magnetic fields, magnetic field gradients, and radio waves to generate images of the organs in the body. MRI does not involve X-rays or the use of ionizing radiation, which distinguishes ...

Fig. 1 demonstrates the basic pipeline which could be used in most FC studies for different imaging modalities. Following image pre-processing (e.g. motion correction, spatial normalization, smoothing), a number of methods can be used to extract the FC patterns from the data, each with its own inherent advantages and disadvantages.
