Box and Cox (1964) developed the transformation. Estimation of any Box-Cox parameters is by maximum likelihood. Box and Cox (1964) offered an example in which the data had the form of survival times but the underlying biological structure was of hazard rates, and the transformation identified this.

Microfinance initially had a limited definition - the provision of microloans to poor entrepreneurs and small businesses lacking access to bank and related services. The two main mechanisms for the delivery of financial services to such clients were: (1) relationship-based banking for individual entrepreneurs and small businesses; and (2) group-based models, where several entrepreneurs come ...

1.. Introduction Since the seminal work of Balestra and Nerlove (1966), dynamic models have played an increasingly important role in empirical analysis of panel data in economics. Given the small time dimension of most panels, the emphasis has been put on models with homogeneous dynamics, and until recently little attention has been paid to the analysis of dynamic heterogeneous panels.

This survey reviews the large and growing literature on copula-based models for economic and financial time series. Copula-based multivariate models allow the researcher to specify the models for the marginal distributions separately from the dependence structure that links these distributions to form a joint distribution.
